ALVIN KRAENZLEIN
—THE ONLY ATHLETE WHO EVER WON FOUR EVENTS AT ONE OLYMPIC

Twenty-four years ago in Paris at the second Olympiad, a young competitor from the United States named Alvin Kraenzlein startled the athletic world by winning four first places. His events in the 40 metre run, the high and low hurdle races and the running broad jump established four Olympic records and netted his country twenty points.

True the competition wasn't nearly so severe as it will be in the forthcoming games in Paris, for instance, but nevertheless, Kraenzlein was about two decades ahead of his time when it came to form in hurdling, and if he had specialized, as modern track

OIL COMMITTEE IN ADJOURNMENT

Brief and Quick Session Yesterday — Efforts to Get Witnesses on Stand

Washington, Apr. 20.—Another brief and quick session was held yesterday by the senate oil committee and at its conclusion adjournment was taken until Friday because of the difficulty in procuring the attendance of witnesses.

William H. Miller of Columbus, O., and J. F. Maughan of Harrison, Tex., but formerly of Oklahoma, were examined today with reference to reports of "denial" at the Republican national convention at Chicago in 1920, but they shed little, if any, additional light on the subject.

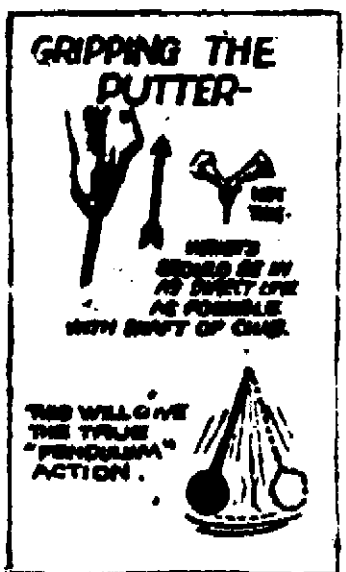

Miller declared positively that the late Jake L. Hamon, Republican national committeeman from Oklahoma, never had given him $25,000 or any other sum for the payment of the expenses of the Harding headquarters organization at Chicago. J. B. French of Oklahoma City testified last Monday that Hamon had told him of such payment to Miller.

More Witnesses Called.

Laughlin, who said he had known Hamon for many years, quoted the late national committeeman as having said after the Chicago convention that he had "signed the check" that resulted in the nomination of Mr. Harding and that he would spend $1,000,000 to put Oklahoma in the Republican column in the general election.

Subpoenas were issued today for three additional witnesses who will be questioned in connection with the "denial" at Chicago. They are K. J. Castello of that city; C. A. Coakley of Ardmore, Okla., who was attorney for Clara Smith Hamon, who shot and killed the national committeeman, and J. C. Clifton of Ardmore, manager of the hotel at which Hamon lived.

GOLF IS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

GRIPPING THE PUTTER—

Should the putting grip differ from the driving grip? Why or why not? Answered by TED RAY

The slogan of English golf, winner of innumerable tournaments and member of the greatest golf combination in history—the team of "Vardon and Hay."

I hold the putter with my wrists in a more direct line with the shaft than in the case of any other club. The reason for so doing is that I can get a truer pendulum action or stroke than if the wrists were running in a different direction from the shaft, as they do in some degree when I am driving.

Blind Indian Leads Way to Old Settlement.

Missoula, Mont.—The site of a trading post which, 500 miles inland from the Pacific ocean, was founded in 1807, at virtually the same time that John Jacob Astor was establishing his post at the mouth of the Columbia river, has been found by Duncan McDonald of Dixon, Mont., son of an early Hudson's Bay company factor. A blind Indian was McDonald's guide.

A heap of stones and ashes on the shore of Lake Pen d'Oreille in northern Idaho is all that is left of the log barricades and cabins built by David Thompson in 1807.

Thompson was an employee of the Hudson's Bay company in eastern Canada when Astor determined to send his expedition by boat around Cape Horn. Offered employment by Astor, Thompson decided instead to lead an expedition to find a route to the continent and establish a post at the mouth of the Columbia before Astor's could round the Horn.

But Thompson's expedition was forced by hostile Indians to camp for a winter north of what is now the city of Spokane, and the Thompson party arrived at the mouth of the Columbia to find Astor's men building their cabins.

Thompson returned to the Rocky mountain region and built his fur-trading posts on Lake Pen d'Oreille, in what has become northern Idaho, on Flathead lake, in what is now western Montana, and near the present site of the city of Missoula.

The recent expedition, which found the remains of the Lake Pen d'Oreille post, designated by Thompson in his diaries as "Kullyspell house," was led by McDonald, accompanied by the blind Indian from the Flathead reservation known as Old Aleck, who, in his boyhood, had seen standing the old stone chimney of Kullyspell house.

McDonald said the principal importance attaching to the discovery was that it fixed the spot of Idaho's first trading post.

MINE WAR SLACKENS.
Pineville, Ky., Apr. 19.—Comparative quiet obtained yesterday at the Straight creek camp of the Liberty Coal and Coke company, where a flareup of labor troubles has resulted in the concentration of national guardsmen. Operations were resumed, with depleted working forces as a score or more non-union miners had quit. Except for an occasional volley from guards when movements were detected on adjacent mountain sides, firing was suspended.

He laughed at Kellogg's Bran!

Now read this letter of thanks from Mr. Kane. It speaks for itself. Remember, it is because Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran that it was so effective in his case—just as it has been in thousands of others. Only ALL bran can produce 100 per cent results.

As the fact:
Imagine a young man weighing 165 pounds in 10 days a few months ago. An elderly lady whom I knew then I was a kid told me what she thought was a last visit. Upon being told of my weight she immediately suggested I try Kellogg's Bran. I did not look upon her views very highly. . . . I was to learn.

My dear friend, I am still laughing . . .
not at your product, but because I am able to. I am telling you and the world at large, "Kellogg's Bran is the best thing I should be called. Contrition's worst enemy." I owe you my heartiest gratitude. I can talk, and whenever the opportunity comes I will, my mouth is always full of Kellogg's Bran. Working you constant days of progress, I am Yours for success,

Great Age Credited to Fossilized Plants

Chicago.—Traces of flowers that may have bloomed millions of years ago have been discovered in the petrified forest of the southern Black hills in South Dakota, according to D. C. Jarvis, director of the Field Museum of Natural History. The age of the formation in which they are found, as estimated on the basis of active disintegration, exceeds a hundred million years.

One of these flowers has been reconstructed here in the museum in cooperation with their discoverer, Professor Wilsend of Yale, an authority on these plants.

"These flowers belong to an extinct group of 'monocotyledonous' plants, an apparent contradiction in terms," said Professor Jarvis. "Their nearest living relatives are the so-called sunflowers, the plants that furnish the 'palm leaves' used by artists. The sunflowers or Cycads are flowerless plants in the same sense as pine trees are flowerless. Their extinct relatives, however, bore perfect flowers in great number, large, very elaborate and strikingly unlike any other flowers known. So abundant were these plants in their time that the era when they flourished is called the Age Cycads."

"This flower greeted the eyes of its discoverer contemporaries, the long-necked Dromaeosaurs and the long-tailed Troodontids, both of them and all their kind, according to geological science, turned to dust or stone long before Noah gathered his zoo for the ark."

Words Are All Powerful
"Thoughts are the children of your brain and words are the garments they wear—do not make tramps of them. Words are all-powerful—They can wreck homes, destroy lives, ruin bodies and devastate property."
George Washington Roberts.

LAMAR MENTION

The fire department was called to the kitchen restaurant early yesterday morning, and Officer Ross of the police department shook down the fire in the kitchen stove and put on a new covering so that no inconvenience would be caused to the employees. Some smoke had been caused by towels smoldering, due to the electric stove, but there was no damage.

Oneontans motoring from Oneonta to Birmingham cannot fail to notice the number of "Kaiser Batters" on the stations that have been established and with readers in their communities. Here's an industry that citizens who are giving it support will take satisfaction in the doing. Not only are these stations being established but the number of repeat orders being received at the factory is one of the features of the project that is giving the office's great encouragement that they are building an industry that will in future years be the pride of the city.

AFTERNOON WITH KIPING

Prof. A. M. Curtis Delights Members of Woman's Club by Giving Sketch of Kipling's Life and Selections from His Poems.

A program that afforded real pleasure to those present was rendered by Prof. A. M. Curtis yesterday afternoon at the Woman's club rooms, when he gave an informal sketch of Kipling and read selections from his poems. Prof. Curtis showed a wealth of knowledge of Kipling's works and a deep sympathy with and understanding of the author. His talk was given with delicate and beautifully expressed rhetoric which delighted those who listened.

In his sketch of the author he said that Kipling goes from one end to the other of the human mental attributes and says something fine about all of them. Some of the more important attributes mentioned were imagination, political philosophy and spirituality. He illustrated the understanding of the author of each of these by reading selection from poems. One of the poems from which he read was "The Galley Slave." In this poem Kipling shows his understanding of the feelings of the man who does hard labor and the man who is down and out. Another poem and one of quite recent date "The Glory of the Garden" illustrates unusually fine allegory. In it Kipling presents England as the garden and shows his wonderful love for his country.

Of particular interest to all present was Prof. Curtis' account of a personal experience in England where he visited Westminster school about a year ago. He told how the boys came into Westminster Abbey every morning at promptly 8:30 in cut-away coats, black ties and silk hats. He told how, after a boy had been away from the school for two or three years, it was an honor for which he paid to come back and cut his name in the walls of the school wherever he wished. This is one of the traditions of the school. He also told how at the opening of school two boys went to an old table, the only one in the school room, and brought out the drawer two bundles of birch switches to be in sight of the students during the session.

The hostesses of the afternoon were: Mrs. George Gibbs, Mrs. Clarence Moore, Mrs. Stanley Morris and Mrs. I. DeRonde.

LEGACY OF $5,000

Fox Hospital Handsomely Remunerated by Its Late President, Hon. Walter L. Brown

Edward Crippen, Chairman President of the Fox Hospital—Orlando B. Brown, who served as President of the Fox Hospital from 1914 to 1922, has bequeathed a legacy of $5,000 to the Fox Hospital. The legacy was announced yesterday by the board of directors of the hospital, which was held at the National bank building.

No local institution ever profited more by the hearty and loyal support of a friend than did the Fox Memorial hospital by the untiring efforts in its behalf of the late Hon. Walter L. Brown and the announcement made at a meeting of the board of directors of that institution, held at the National bank building, yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, that Mr. Brown had left the institution $5,000 in bonds of the International Business Machine company, was received with keen satisfaction evidencing as it does his interest to the last. Doubtless action upon the gift will be deferred until the bonds have been received.

Resolutions of Respect.

The following resolutions upon the death of Mr. Brown presented by the committee, David F. Wilber, Irving H. Rowe and Edward Crippen, were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, It is with deep sorrow that we are called upon to record our loss in the death of Hon. Walter L. Brown, who has been president of this hospital since February, 1922, and during the earlier years of the hospital before any endowments had been received this hospital was supported largely by funds raised in the community, and it was in large part due to his active management that the hospital was able to serve in the capacity for which it was intended. He was ever loyal and true in his devotion to the administration of its affairs to the last, even though handicapped at times by his illness.

Resolved, That this resolution be made a part of the records of this institution and that we extend to his relatives and friends our sincere sympathy and condolence.

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be presented to Mrs. Brown and that it be published in the Oneonta Daily Star.

Crippen Succeeds Brown.

The directors at this meeting elected Cashier Edward Crippen, who served the institution very faithfully as treasurer, president to fill out the unexpected term of former President Brown. Robert Hall, the secretary, was elected treasurer to succeed Mr. Crippen and will serve as secretary-treasurer.

To fill the vacancy on the board of directors Orlando B. Rowe was elected.

Other Legacies.

Resolutions were passed voicing the appreciation of the board of directors for the legacy of $20,000 from the estate of the late George L. Wilber and also for one of $1,000 from the estate of Mrs. Lillian S. Kirkland.

APPEARANCE GUARANTEED

Vincent Lopez Will Surely Come to Oneonta for American Legion Dance—Will Play Before Royalty This Spring.

Vincent Lopez, America's foremost director of modern music, will appear in person at the American Legion dance on April 23, with his world famous orchestra. There has been a report about the city that Lopez would send one of his dozen or more auxiliary orchestras but the report has no basis in fact as the personal appearance of the famous leader and his own orchestra has been absolutely guaranteed by contract.

Lopez is the most popular exponent of the new music in America—so much so that the Keith vaudeville circuit retains him as a permanent headliner in its New York theatres, which he has played week in and week out for over two years. He also makes records and gives radio concerts. This spring he will give a modern music concert at Carnegie hall in New York under distinguished musical patronage and in the summer will go to London for a series of concerts at Queen's hall and for a command performance before King George and Queen Mary.

Oneonta post feels that in bringing Lopez and his orchestra to Oneonta it is doing the people of the city and vicinity a real service. When considering the selection of an orchestra for this dance the committee thought the best none too good and hence contracted for Lopez at a cost of $1,200. That would seem like an enormous expense for music alone but the committee is certain that Oneontans will say following the dance that the orchestra was worth it.

Evangelist Jefferson Lowman Still Drawing Capacity Crowds to Silver Street Baptist Church.

Last evening the River Street Baptist church was filled to the doors again to hear the "Boy Wonder," Evangelist Jefferson Lowman, in a message that thrilled every person. The service started with a good musical program. Mr. Lowman again demonstrated his ability to quote scripture by delivering an entire chapter of the Bible from memory.

The congregation has in the past few nights learned a Christian yell and one interesting feature of the service was to hear over 200 people from the audience give the yell. The yell is as follows: "Say my friend, have you seen Jesus? Timothy, 2:11. First Thessalonians 5:23 will tell you exactly what to do."

Last evening Mr. Lowman delivered one of his most powerful messages and the audience sat in perfect silence and unwonted interest through the entire service. "Jeff" is trying to shorten his service a little, taking into consideration the fact that the people who are filling the church every night are also working in either business or home life every day. The meetings are causing no little interest in the sixth ward as well as in the rest of the city. In fact, the church is having many carloads of interested listeners from villages distant as far as 25 miles. Mr. Lowman has a wonderful program in mind for the remainder of his stay in Oneonta and he will endeavor to fulfill his entire program of special evenings.

The invitation for conversion was given at the close of the service and a number of souls were brought to Christ.

ONEONTA CHAPTER, D. A. R.

April Meeting Addressed by Miss Rowland of High School Faculty.

The April meeting of the Oneonta chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was held yesterday with Mrs. J. A. Dewar, 92 Chestnut street. There was a good attendance and much interest was manifested in the valuable paper by Miss Zoe Rowland, instructor in history in the Oneonta High school, who considered the timely theme of "Pro-Americanism in Our Historical Text Books." In her address Miss Rowland considered specifically several of the standard works on American history and asserted that they were unbiased in judgment, balanced in space allotted to topics of importance, and without work which give the latest conclusions of the most learned and painstaking investigators in the field of historical research. The paper had the close attention of every member of the chapter in attendance.

The hostesses of the afternoon were Mrs. Dewar, Mrs. Charles Smith and Mrs. A. W. Cutler.

CONCERNING LUMBER

Thomas C. Briggs, Chief Executive Officer of the Ontario Lumber Association, spoke at the Ontario Lumber Association luncheon at the Hotel Ontario, Friday, April 10.

One of the most interesting addresses yet delivered at the Ontario Lumber Association luncheon was given yesterday when Thomas C. Briggs explained to his fellow members some interesting facts concerning the lumber industry, bringing out many points concerning which a majority of the listeners had undoubtedly been in doubt.

"Lumbering is the third largest industry in the United States," said Mr. Briggs, "a fact which is better appreciated when one considers the enormity of the automobile, steel and other industries. It is one of the leading industries in the world, and the leading timber is on the Pacific coast and that fact accounts for the high prices of much of the lumber which we use. The cost for instance, is $1.05 per hundred pounds.

In speaking of lumber prices Mr. Briggs called attention to the enormous overhead of the lumber mills and yards and stated that the lumberman used the same methods in fixing his prices as did any manufacturer or merchant. The frequent fluctuations of price on almost all grades of lumber was caused entirely by the operation of the law of supply and demand, he said.

Diagrams of the cross section of a tree had been placed in the hands of each person and Mr. Briggs gave a very interesting and instructive description of the way in which a tree is cut, telling from just which parts the various kinds of lumber come. In conclusion Mr. Briggs spoke of his pride in the lumber business and told of how that pride had been increased by what the industry had done for the country during the World War.

There were distributed to each person pamphlets in which salient points in the talk were set forth and certain acute observations concerning things in general related. The pamphlet was illustrated with extremely life-like cartoons of the speaker and of Secretary L. Curtis Denney, whose report of the address the document purported to be.

Dr. George J. Dana gave a short talk explaining the purpose of the Ontario Lumber Association and extending an invitation to all to attend the annual meeting of the association at the hotel on Friday, April 11. Dr. Dana explained that the purpose of the memorial week is to create sentiment looking toward the raising of one million dollars for the purchase and endowment of Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson, whom the speaker characterized as an American statesman than whom there has been no greater.

Considerable entertainment was furnished at the luncheon by the discussion of the case of William H. Hoffman, whom it was alleged had been guilty of purchasing a horse covered by a chattel mortgage. A telegram was read from citizens of Milford, where the animal once had its happy home, asking for an investigation by Rotary of the alleged unethical conduct of one of its members. City Judge Van Woeort and Attorney George Wohlleben spoke briefly, each emphasizing the heinousness of the crime and calling for prompt adequate investigation. A song setting forth the wonders of the steel, H. Henry by name, and explaining the conduct of its owners, both past and present was sung by the Village Choir. All in all a very pleasant time was had and at a late hour the guests departed, voting "Bill" — a royal source of entertainment.

Mr. H. J. D. Dana was welcomed into the club, Dr. George J. Dana giving the initiatory remarks. Guests at the luncheon were Rotarians "Cliff" Webster of Rochester; Kianan's Walter M. Goldsmith, Frank M. Rice and W. F. House of Oneonta; W. S. Clyde of Delhi; and J. A. Dewar, Stuart M. Keenan, George Wohlleben, Dr. Frank H. Tietz and Charles H. Dowdall of Oneonta.

Ceperley, who spent a portion of the winter in Florida, will this evening address the Baraca class of the Main Street Baptist church, telling them of his observations and experiences and of the boom that that state is enjoying and of the increased values of real estate there. MINAWAYS NEAR STAMFORD

Town of Superior Officer Frigman... of When Breaking of Mink... Froma Tanager to Swamp—Other... Tanager Killed by Trying to Fly... From a Different Side.

Stamford, Apr. 10.—Wednesday while Supervisor J. B. Gilbert of Stamford was driving a team hitched to a load of sawdust on Route Brook road, the sawdust broke, allowing the tongue to drop, frightening the horses and they ran away after breaking loose from the wagon. They were stopped by a man named Dibble and returned to the scene of the accident. The horses were so frightened they could not be hitched to the load until a team of mules was secured and had drawn it a short distance, when the frightened animals were quieted and resumed their journey with the load. No one was injured and very little damage resulted.

Thursday morning a team belonging to Joe, the Italian residing on Railroad avenue, became frightened in the east end of Stamford and ran away through Main street and down Railroad avenue and were stopped near the barn by running straddle of a tree. No damage was done.

Close Shandaken Tunnel to Stop Flood. Water passing through the Shandaken tunnel from the Schoharie creek near Prattsville was over six feet high when it passed out of the roadway and entered the Esopus creek at Shandaken, raising the Esopus creek, which caused considerable damage at Phenicia and other points. Mains of the Phenicia Water company were broken by the flood and the Phenicia water supply for the present is cut off. To help stop the flood the gates of the intake of the tunnel near Prattsville were closed.

Fined for Assault.

Charles Hamm was arrested Tuesday and arraigned before Police Justice C. Champion charged with assault on George C. Welch at Stamford creamery Sunday morning. Hamm pleaded guilty and was fined $25. The two men are farmers of the town of Jefferson and draw big loads of milk to the creamery. They had an altercation over their rights of driving on the highway, and Welch received a black eye and other bruises.

Stamford Transfers Library Site.

transferred to Stamford school district No. 1 the site in the park on Main street for the building of the Dr. Churchill Memorial library and Community house. Owing to the cost of moving the store building and residence on the site, the commissioners decided to include the building with the deed. The board of education is to do as they see fit regarding the building. We understand the building will be sold, the buyer to move it away at once so work can be commenced on the library building as soon as contract can be let. Whatever money is received for the building will be applied on the new building.

Meetings of the Clerical Club.

The Catskill Mountain Clerical club will hold its next meeting at the Baptist church Monday. Rev. M. S. Presser of Fleischmans will address the afternoon meeting. The speaker for the morning has not yet been decided on.

Hair Glory

One minute a day gave it to me

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My hair is my greatest glory. It keeps as young as willow leaves and grows finer every year. I have never had falling hair or dandruff, never a touch of gray. Mine is a grandmother's age, yet countless girls who see me on the stage and elsewhere, envy my luxuriant hair.

So with mother, she died at the age of 77 with hair like mine today. So with many friends who use my method. They have beautiful hair, and it does not lose its color.

I am convinced that millions, in my way, can multiply the beauty of their hair. And I have arranged to bring that method to them.

A French Formula.

My mother and I, many years ago, found this formula in France. It had been developed by experts whose whole lives had been devoted to hair study.

One factor in it combats hardened oil and dandruff, the great enemies of hair. They stiffen the hair roots, check hair growth, choke the supply of pigment which gives hair its color.

Other factors stimulate and fertilize the scalp. Hair thrives on such a method as follows:—Translations of a

WORLD LAW CODE OF OLD HITTITE TRIBE

Translations Disclose Many Facts About Ancients.

Translations of a code of laws by Dr. George A. Barton, professor of Semitics at the University of Pennsylvania, are disclosing many facts about the Hittites, a tribe driven out of Palestine by the Israelites.

The tablets of laws, containing about 24 sections in all, of which but 15 are missing, form part of a find made in 1876 by Prof. Hugo Winckler in the ruins of Nineveh.

"The Hebrews," said Doctor Barton, were an agricultural people, holding land from the king or from cities with certain feudal obligations. Banality is provided for in the code. Provision is even made for distribution of the plunder.

"The laws deal with almost every sort of offense—assault and battery, separation of wife and husband and breaching engagements. When a man and wife decided to separate, the house was divided and the children, with the exception of one, went with the father.

ANCIENT RUINS NOW ACCESSIBLE

Indian Reservation in Arizona Easily Reached.

Among numerous national monuments being established in the Navajo reservation, which will serve, along with others, to reserve to the people of the United States historic landmarks, says the Department of the Interior at Washington.

The Navajo National monument is within the great and little-known Navajo Indian reservation in northeastern Arizona. It comprises three separate tracts of land, each of which contains the ruins of a remarkable prehistoric cave, pueblo or cliff dwelling in a good state of preservation. These are known as Betatakin (the Navajo name of the cliff house), Kistai (meaning broken pottery) and Inscription house.

The latter ruin derives its name from an inscription scratched into the clay plaster of a wall. It reads: "S-Sapero Ano Dom 1061." An intrepid early Spanish explorer or priest, probably on his way to or from the Colorado river, must have entered the canyon and paused at the then long-abandoned pueblo to scratch a record of his visit. It was not visited again until June, 1900.

Village Had 120 Rooms.

Betatakin is situated at an elevation of 7,000 feet, in a great cave, 450 feet long, with a maximum depth of 150 feet, in the side of a soft sandstone cliff, which forms the walls of a most picturesque and beautiful canyon. The cave roof projects far out over the village, which originally contained 120 rooms and occupied every foot of building space. Within the cave is a never-failing spring of excellent water. The gorge below is filled with tall aspen, alder and birch, while the opposite slope is studded with pines.

Kistai is the largest of the cave pueblos and is appropriately named, as the open spaces between the apartments are strewn with broken pottery of the finest type produced by the ancient cliff dwellers. The village sits a cave 350 feet long and 50 feet deep. There are 148 rooms. Several circular ceremonial chambers or kivas at the front of the cave and below the level of its floor indicate the tribe occupying it was different from the clan that lived at Betatakin, as in the latter are no rooms of this type.

Kistai is situated in a wooded canyon the walls of which are warmly colored. The rich greens of the foliage and bright flowers create a picturesque setting in an atmosphere of peace and simplicity.

Access Fairly Easy.

The Navajo monument is reached from Flagstaff, Ariz., on the Santa Fe railroad and National Old Trails road by a fair dirt road running northeasterly and crossing the Little Colorado river on a suspension bridge into the Navajo Indian reservation. Just before the bridge crossing a new road from the left comes from Grand Canyon National park, which is also a point of departure. Tuba City is 90 miles from Flagstaff and about the same distance from Grand Canyon village. Sixty-five miles farther takes one to Marsh pass and 15 miles farther to Kayenta, a post office and trading post, which is an outfitting point for the guide and pack horse trip to the monument.

John Wetherill of Kayenta is custodian of the monument and a reliable outfitter. Indian guides are engaged for the trips. The Betatakin ruin is eight miles north of Marsh pass. Kistai is about seven miles from Betatakin, and Inscription house about forty miles to the west of Kistai and Nitsite canyon.

Nitsite is formed by a series of deep cut canyons, the courses of which zigzag in every direction like the tentacles of some huge devilfish, their rounded points and sides shimmering in the sunlight as though pulsating with life.

Girls Adopt Uniform in Spirit of Democracy

Heartaches among students at the South Philadelphia high school for girls because of the vagaries of Dame Fashion have been banished by the adoption by school authorities of a uniform dress for students.

Although wearing of the dress is voluntary, a large number of girls have already ordered the garb, and the sentiment that the uniform is a proper manifestation of school spirit is reported spreading among the rest of the student body.

The uniform is the outgrowth of a self-government plan. An open forum on "School Spirit and School Problems" recently led to discussion of dress, in which parents of the girls participated. The uniform was favored by all present.

The costume comprises a dark blue jumper with the school monogram embroidered in gray silk, white tailored waist, sport shoes and stockings. The cost is said to be $10.

Wall of Nitrogen Makes Sky Blue, Says Professor

London.—The long-accepted explanation of the blueness of the sky as being due to the well understood action of the sun's rays upon particles in the atmosphere is challenged, according to the Daily Mail's Copenhagen correspondent, by Professor Vigand, of Christiania university.

Professor Vigand claims a discovery suggesting that the atmosphere of the earth outside the air stratum is shut up as if in a balloon, whose wall consists of a solid mass of crystalline particles of nitrogen. It is this, he says, which gives the sky its blue color, and it also accounts for several other phenomena, including the fact that radio waves follow the contour of the earth instead of flying from it at a tangent and losing themselves in the ether.

ADVERTISE in your daily newspaper and watch your business grow

By LAURA MILLER

"GROCERIES AND FEED" MAY SATISFY MORE THAN ONE HUNGER

Girls who want to succeed in business frequently ask whether bookkeeping isn't a blind alley occupation, whether once proved dependable in handling details, they won't be expected to contend themselves with the petty things as long as they work. And other girls, hunting an career, often, for going in search of the romantic success that they think to find in some big city, insist that "working for your father and mother can't even seem to learn that you're grown up, if you're a girl!"

Yet father may be in his own comfortable fashion, a "capitalist," able to choose for daughter but one occupation and short cuts to an established place, that not one wage earner in 10,000 finds. And the task of winning father's confidence by hard work plus some clever salesmanship, is, if we may believe the daughters who have tried it, just the same sort of work plus salesmanship that's required to get ahead on any job.

It's the story of the daughter entering father's business that is indicated in a dignified letter head reading:

L. R. LEONARD
GROCERIES AND FEED
Sullivan, Indiana

"After graduation," writes Miss Leonard, "I accepted a position as bookkeeper and clerk in my father's grocery store. Soon he began consulting me on minor details and management. Then he turned the whole over to me to manage. Later, deciding to retire from active business, he sold it to me. Now I own and operate one of the largest grocery stores in southern Indiana."

"I recommend bookkeeping, store management, and saving till she can go into business for herself to any young woman who has a talent for detail or for management. She can succeed and enjoy her work," continues Miss Leonard.

"A clean grocery store, with packages all in an orderly row, with goods displayed to the best advantage and the fragrant odor of good coffee rising above it all, ought to appeal to the housewife's instincts of any girl."

Missionary's Long Hair Cut as He Goes to Prison

Walla Walla, Wash.—Flowing hair and religion received a setback when "Rev." M. R. Cadter, itinerant missionary, arrived here to begin serving a prison sentence for the theft of a motorcar. "Cadter wore his hair in long black tresses and declared before the court it was against his religion to cut it. He said he was a good mechanic, but because of his long hair he could not get a job."

But in the penitentiary here the vogue is clipped hair, so when Cadter arrived the prison rules were not set aside.

Not Even "Thanks"

Mr. Skirtsly—"No was trying. You can't get the last word with a woman." Mr. Longsuffer—"I did once. It was on a crowded 'L' train. I said, 'Take my seat, madam,' and she dropped into it without a word."

TO STUDY MINERAL WEALTH IN ALASKA

Survey of 36,000 Miles of Wilderness Planned

Washington.—In its latest search for valuable mineral wealth the government is sending a party of expert geologists and topographic engineers on a midwinter expedition to the tip of Alaska on the Arctic, to survey some 36,000 square miles of uncharted wilderness, rugged mountain chains and large stretches of undulating treeless plains.

A few days ago the geological survey told of the plans to send, at the expense of the Navy department, a small party of government technicians to northern Alaska to survey lands embraced in the navy's largest petroleum preserve, but little could be gathered from the brief announcement as to the hazards and hardships this little band of men probably will face.

Southern Portions Surveyed. Much of the region south of the reserve already has been surveyed by a party under direction of Dr. Philip S. Smith, leader of the party now on its way to the Far North, and portions east of it also have been examined by J. M. Meritt, another member of this winter's expedition.

The present party, in addition to Doctor Smith and Meritt, will consist of William T. Foran, geologist; Gerald Fitzgerald and R. K. Lynt, topographic engineers, and several assistants. It will enter the region from the south, starting in a winter when some of the transportation problems are least difficult. It will be left on its own resources for at least six months, and tons of supplies will have to be transported, mainly by dog-sled, for 400 miles, even before reaching the reserve.

At Tanana, dog teams will be purchased and packers, camp hands and dog-team drivers will be employed. From Tanana the technical members of the party will go forth with four teams, comprising 80 dogs, followed by slower freight teams. From Tanana the route leads down the Tanana river to Tanana, thence along the mail trail overland nearly 100 miles to the little mission of St. John's-in-the-Wilderness. From here the route will follow the Alutka river, a tributary of the Koryuk, which rises in the high, rugged mountains that form the southern border of the naval reserve.

About 150 miles up the Alutka, the northern limit of timber lands, the party will establish a headquarters camp, from which it will explore the adjacent regions.

Will Kill Own Food. From here on for a distance of 700 miles, over a vast stretch of tundra, the expedition will have to use kerosene for cooking food, which will consist of moose, mountain sheep, caribou, ptarmigan, fish and the small black bears of northern Alaska, the latter to contribute materially to the provisioning of the dog teams.

These explorations will determine the most feasible pass across the mountains, and when found the party will march northward to the drainage basin of some tributary of the Colville river. Here two canoes will be cached with enough supplies to last four men a period of three months. The expedition will then push along to the west.

By this time the summer season will be near at hand and sledding no longer will be possible. One party of four will then return to the cache on the headwater stream of the Colville, while the other remains on the tributary of the Moade, each awaiting the break-up of the streams, after which the rest of the journey will be made by canoe.

After the ice breaks, the parties will descend the streams, mapping them and the surrounding country in addition to making geological researches. The Colville party later will make a portage across country to the Chippewee or Ikpikpung river and descend it to Dease inlet, a bay lying about twenty miles east of Point Barrow. Moade river also enters this inlet and when the two parties meet here the survey of the region will have been practically completed. Return will be by way of Point Barrow, Nome and Seattle.

Farm Scientists Are Still Going to School

Washington, D. C.—Workers in the United States Department of Agriculture are continually going to school and trying to increase their knowledge of the work which they are doing. A graduate school in practical agricultural problems is carried on within the department each winter in order to give department workers a chance to continue their training and keep up-to-date in scientific agriculture. Only work in practical subjects such as marketing, plant breeding and the like is given. The school is unofficial and self-supporting. The instructors come from the department or are authorities in other lines of agriculture work.

The Mett's future some part will be Harre. The other yacht, the Tampa, which belonged to Kaiser particularly to the former emperor, has been bought by an American, Hilde Bowland.

Shows Progress Made in Science of Telegraphy

London.—Striking evidence of the advancement made in telegraphy during 1923 is found in the recent exhibit of telegraphic and other instruments at the British Imperial College of Science and Technology.

The most notable development in telegraphy; delay in submarine cabling has been largely eliminated by utilizing the action of light on selenium, which responds so rapidly that the signal sent out is recorded even before the full current has passed over the wire.

A magnetic telegraphic speed recorder is shown, capable of speeding up messages to 1,000 words a minute. This is effected by the current of the incoming signal passing through coils contained in a rapidly revolving iron drum and turning it into a magnet for a brief space, thus attracting a slight piece of iron, shaped like a brake shoe. This operates a fine siphon tube charged with ink, causing it to record the signal on the paper tape as it flies past it.

Another exhibit is an "undulator," or an instrument used in high-speed wireless telegraphy, capable of printing on an endless strip of paper up to 300 words a minute.

Another device which appealed both to laymen and professional is the complicated photographic apparatus for taking motion pictures at the rate of 5,000 a second.

True Love!

Mrs. O. Margaret Young of Billings, Mont., has offered her boy "for sale for any moral purpose." She needs the money for her children. She wants them to have the same advantages other "kids" have. And this is the only way she knows out of it.

GIRL WORKING HARD TO BECOME LINGUIST

Italian Woman Earns Tuition for Schooling.

Philadelphia.—If you were eighteen years old and wanted to be a teacher of languages, would you be willing to attend school eight hours a day, assist at home with two children and do fine embroidery in your spare time to earn money?

Most of us would not—but to Aurora Full, young Italian girl who has been in America only one year, such a strenuous program of activity is merely a good day's work.

There is no touch of martyrdom in the attitude of this young Italian girl. She accepts her role as naturally as the American "daddy" accepts her daily round of duty. She is a special student in the William Penn high school, where she is studying English and Latin. She has learned to speak English fluently in the year she has been here. She also speaks Italian and French, and can read Spanish.

Writes of Italy. In the Christmas number of Onas, the school magazine, Aurora wrote a creditable article on "Christmas Bells in Italy," in which she said: "Christmas in Italy has something of particular beauty, of poetry, of fascination, of mystic quality that it is impossible to explain, and that other feasts have not." Further on she describes the ringing of the Christmas bells in Italy.

"You begin slowly with a detached ringing, then, one after another united in the concert, and the sound augmented into a crescendo, rapid, vibrating, sonorous, full of inexplicable, surprisingly beautiful music. You wait for a moment, and then go back to your song with renewed vigor and force."

Ten years ago, Aurora's father came to America from Italy. A year later her mother joined him here, while Aurora remained in a convent. One year ago Aurora's mother went back to Italy and brought her to America. The young student, intent on her aim to be a teacher of languages, applied immediately to the William Penn high school for special work. She does exquisite embroidery, with tiny fine stitches, to earn money to defray her expenses, and in her spare time she assists her mother in caring for the two younger children.

"I love America—it is so quiet here," the young Italian girl said. "Upon questioning she explained that one does not get shot in this country for having a political opinion."

"Over in Italy we hear continually of one killed here and one killed there. This is the consequence of the war and must be expected, I guess. There is one thing about America—you are cosmopolitan. In Europe a man is German, or Italian, or English, but that is narrow. In America, a man is all of these and yet he is distinct—an American."

"In America people have to work if they want to retain self-respect and the respect of their friends. In Italy if a man loaf he is not considered shameful, but in America a man who does not work is looked down upon."

Says Schools Are Best. "But your wonderful schools are the best of all," she said, enthusiastically, her face lighting up with a smile. "When I first arrived here I said to my mother, 'Oh, why didn't you let me come before?' In Italy the schools are always needing something, but in America your schools are complete and large and comfortable. I don't see how any one could want to skip school in America."

Meanwhile, this young student is working slowly toward her goal to be a teacher of languages. Her parents are in sympathy and accord with her aims, and allow her to attend school instead of working, hoping that through their encouragement and her own application she will one day realize her ambition.

Boy, Ousted From House, Routes Dog From Kennel

Norwalk, Conn.—A case in which a boy excluded from home ejected a dog from his kennel and slept in it was brought to the attention of the juvenile court. Weeks ago Joseph Donatone, twelve, of Mahaness Heights, returning home late at night, found the house locked up. The lad called the family dog from its kennel and spent the night there. This happened frequently afterward, neighbors told the court.

During recent cold weather the dog has slept across the entrance, helping to keep the boy from suffering from the night air.

BACK TRAIL IN EFFORT TO THE UP LOOSE ENDS

Under cross-examination by Paul Holland, attorney for former Attorney General Daugherty, he expressed his opinion that the five-year delay in the institution of government proceedings in the matter was probably due more to the war department than to the justice department. He also corroborated testimony previously given by George J. Stork, department of justice accountant, that the preliminary reports of the government's inquiry into the plant's accounts had been turned over to counsel for the defendants.

George L. Miller, one of the firm of Miller Brothers, owners of "101" ranch in Oklahoma, had a strong reason before the committee in attempting to read a statement defending his transactions with the Indians in which he said he had acquired 2,000 acres of land, and in which he pleaded guilty to fraud. He employed J. L. Todd, of Columbus, O., a former law partner of Mr. Daugherty, to defend him in the prosecution which followed, "to get a square deal," he said.

SENATE STEEL CUT COFFEE TASTES BETTER GOES FURTHER AT YOUR GROCERS

asserted. Mr. Howard dropped him on cross-examination after a single question, to which Miller responded that Mr. Todd had said the former attorney general would not permit his partner to appear before the department of justice. Todd did not get a fee of $2,000, Miller said, originally paid by John McAnay of Pittsburgh.

Says Quimby Frazed and Turn.

In the examination of A. J. Bates, former assistant corporation counsel of Chicago, in connection with the showing of the light pictures, Senator Wheeler threw out frequent suggestions that a conspiracy for interstate shipping of the Dempsey-Carpenter fight thus had the approval of "the attorney general." Bates, to all the questions, insisted that he had no knowledge of such a fact, but had an understanding that the "pictures" could go through. In Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and other states, when somebody paid a fine in each state, C. C. Quimby, who, with Tex Rickard, controlled the films, gave him that understanding, the witness said, and in conferences talked with Alfred Dunn, a Washington lawyer, over long distance telephone. Bates denied that he knew Dunn to be a friend of Mr. Daugherty. He obtained from his association with the picture "deals," he said, a "commission" of $1,500, from Charles Winfield, a Chicago attorney, and $5,000 or $6,000 for other services. Quimby, through all the details, he asserted, "was afraid of a conspiracy charge that would mean a jail sentence, instead of a single fine in each state where the pictures were shown."
